Etched Glass Vase: Deer Dancers of the Arizona Territory

The three Dancers are Symbolic of ancient Indian mythology. These dances were performed before and after the hunt in an attempt to appease the animal spirits. The Deer Dance could last for many hours and all males of hunting age were encouraged to participate. During these rituals it was believed that the animal spirit would rise from the ground and join the festivities. For this reason, the Dancers would stomp and kick the ground to help the animal spirits arise. It was believed that once the animal spirit was released, a mist would surround and protect the participants. The Deer Dancers Vase is handmade by an Arizona artist and available in sapphire blue.

Chip and Dip Bowl

This whimsical chip and dip platter is the original hand-painted collection of 'one of a kind' ceramics. The artist's distinctive style and bright colors are fun and imaginative. Choose from coyotes, chili peppers, kokopellis, corn dancers, purple turtles, or green turtles. Your guests will treasure these clay works forever. For food safety, all platters are made of commercial clay and glazes. Hand washing is recommended. Hand painted in Canada. Wood frame can be customized.

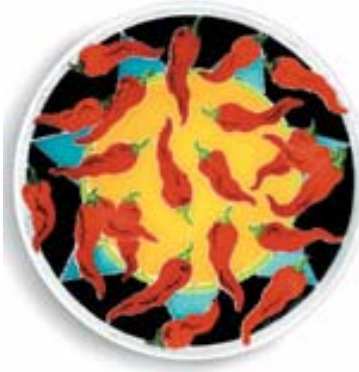

Cosanti Bells

The traditional bronze casting process is enhanced by the design techniques developed by Soleri. An aluminum bell pattern is packed in molding sand in a specially engineered box. When the pattern is removed, a bell impression is left. Then an original design and the Cosanti hallmark are pressed into the sand mold. The bronze, heated to 2400 degrees, is poured into the mold. When the metal cools, the bell is removed, cleaned and dipped in an acid bath to produce an oxidized patina. The specific patinas are impossible to duplicate with any precision.

Southwestern Pottery

Inspired by the beauty of the Garden and the Sonoran Desert to express his love of this area in clay, the artist uses a special blend of the Earth's high-fire stoneware clay with a sandstone quality. His work is characterized by the natural beauty of clay left unglazed as much as possible and his style is expressed in simple, fine and graceful shapes, hand "thrown" on a pottery wheel. He typically uses only one glaze color on a piece to preserve the elegant simplicity of each work. This potter's style continuously changes and evolves, making it highly esteemed by collectors. Each piece is entirely handmade and signed, with no two pieces exactly alike. Join Arizona enthusiasts from around the world who take home this southwestern pottery as a remembrance of the Sonoran Desert.
