

California Proposition 65 General Statement

TradeNet Publishing, Inc. has made every effort to comply with the State of California regulations with regard to products we produce. To the best of our knowledge, the products that we manufacture contain no chemicals that can cause cancer or reproductive toxicity, at levels which would require a warning under the statute.

California's Proposition 65 (The California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act) entitles California consumers to warnings for products that contain chemicals known to the state of California to cause cancer and or birth defects if those products expose consumers to such chemicals above certain threshold levels.

For additional or specific information about Proposition 65, contact the California Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment directly for questions and information.